Basic and applied research underlies the development of interview techniques and protocols. However, further research on the accuracy of children's eyewitness memory—for example, concerning highly emotional and embarrassing information—is necessary to elucidate how extensive these benefits are.

Children's Testimony - iResearchNet

Children's memory and testimony about negative emotional experiences also depend on individuals' coping strategies. Avoidant coping strategies lead children to evade thoughts, conversations, or reminders about the traumatic experiences. Parents' attempts to minimize or ignore their own or their children's distress facilitate avoidant coping.

An eyewitness testimony is a statement given under oath by a person present at an event who can describe what happened. During circumstances in which a child is a witness to the event, the child can be used to deliver a testimony on the stand. The credibility of a child, however, is often questioned due to their underdeveloped memory capacity and overall brain physiology.
